About This Catalog

The Agriculture, Fisheries, Forestry & Livestock Catalog of ProQuest microform contains over 40 research collections and approximately 60 serials. Inside you will find titles related to Agriculture, Fisheries, Forestry and Farming. This catalog also contains information on obtaining Dissertations on Agriculture, Fisheries, Forestry & Livestock.

This catalog would be of particular interest to researchers in the fields of Agriculture, Life Sciences, Natural Resources, Forestry, Horticulture, Agriscience, Fishery and Animal Science.

One pivotal collection from the catalog is, British Agricultural Writers. This collection provides a selection of old English farm books by almost 50 different writers on topics such as, agriculture, dairy farming, farm economy and lumbering. For libraries looking to enhance their serials on microform, New England Farmer and Horticultural Journal, from Boston would make an excellent addition to any library. This journal was one of the earliest agricultural journals established in the United States covering issues of the transition from the traditions of home production to the requirements of commercial agriculture.

This preface provides a glimpse into the contents of the Agriculture, Fisheries, Forestry & Livestock Catalog of ProQuest microform. Feel free to browse through our titles, or if you are looking for a particular research collection, please consult the index in the back. If you have any questions regarding any of our titles, please contact your ProQuest representative at umisalesinfo@il.proquest.com, 800.521.0600 ext. 2793 or 734.761.4700 ext. 2793.

The Advantages of Microform

Despite the continually developing array of digital technologies—and sometimes because of it—information professionals at libraries and universities worldwide still rely on microform. They know it is an archival medium that will meet the needs of researchers for years to come. Microform provides many advantages including:

- New Viewer/Scanners - Images can now be easily sent to remote locations using microform viewer/scanners, which link to your computer workstations, letting you view and print articles or digitize and transmit them electronically (within Fair Use guidelines). This approach combines the unparalleled preservation and storage benefits of microform with the speed and ease of electronic access.
- Special Collections - Microform is the answer if you need hard-to-find or specialty resources. Many older newspapers and periodicals are available only in microform, and it gives your users access to complete page images from historical titles—often from the first issue forward.
- Space Savings - Microform lets you store an extensive collection of complete article images in a small amount of space. Microform takes up less than one-tenth the area of bound copies of newspapers and periodicals.
- Ownership - There is no upkeep or access fees. It uses stable, proven technology you already have, with no need for new workstations or continual software upgrades.
- Clarity and Accuracy - Microform is the answer if you need cover-to-cover clarity and accuracy. Full-image articles are essential to getting the full story.
- Complete Collection - Microform usually is the best solution if you need a complete collection fast. Maybe you're seeking accreditation or even rebuilding after a disaster. An extensive, customized collection of retrospective and current microform titles will meet the needs of your researchers quickly and efficiently.
- Support for Specialized Studies - A compact collection in microform will meet specialized research needs and still leave plenty of resources for the rest of your population. Many libraries also use microform as an added point of access for content that is most in demand.
- Durability - archived properly, it can last for generations, and there is no degradation of images.
- ProQuest Quality - ProQuest's microform images are taken directly from the original printed pages, so you always get the clarity of first-generation copies.

ProQuest Microform is the answer because we've been producing it since 1938. We not only exceed industry standards, we set them. Our microform products include thousands of newspapers and periodicals, and hundreds of research collections, many of which are not available from any other source.

'It seemed important to record the incredible events of those years and the best way was to photograph them.'

~ Rexford Tugwell, Director, Farm Security Administration

The photographs of the Farm Security Administration and the Office of War Information in the Prints and Photographs Division of the Library of Congress, fully captioned and arranged by region and by subject. The Farm Security Administration photographic collection is one of the most famous in the world, its images depicting living and working conditions in urban, suburban and rural America during the depths of the Depression and the outbreak of World War II. Yet the collection as a whole is barely known with public awareness based on a handful of photographs reproduced time and again. Publication on microfiche of the 87,000 FSA photographs in the Library of Congress together with a printed Guide/Subject Index makes the collection genuinely accessible allowing researchers to scan through thousands of photographs going immediately to the regions and subjects that interest them.

Energy and Agriculture

1970 - Present

Since public awareness peaked in the 1970s over the worldwide energy crisis, an untold amount of literature has been generated about energy supply and conservation, as well as the development of alternative energy sources. Energy and Agriculture includes, in one major microfiche program, an authoritative compilation of these primary resource materials, including:

- American Society of Agriculture Engineering (ASAE) technical papers
- Books
- Bulletins
- Committee reports
- Conference reports
- Cooperative extension publications
- Industrial literature
- Journals

Miscellaneous materials from the Rann Document Center, National Science Foundation, Electricity Council, Farm-Electrification Council, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, and other prominent organizations. Covering topics such as the development of energy from agricultural products to alternative sources such as wind, solar, and nuclear energy, this collection provides research assistance and important information for all areas of energy and agricultural research. Universities use Energy and Agriculture in their agricultural, engineering, and home economics programs. Cooperative extension services discover information for planning, executing, and evaluating learning programs in their service areas. And corporations and governmental agencies throughout the world use this collection to research programs for developing human and economic resources and increasing production capacities. The collection has been organized into four subject categories for focused research:

- Alternative Sources of Energy (ALT) - covers the use of solar, wind, and nuclear energy sources
- Biomass Energy Sources (BIO) - numerous titles discussing development of renewable energy, utilizing vegetable and coprophagous agricultural byproducts for energy, and energy alternatives such as gasohol and biogas
- Conservation and Use of Energy (CNV) - provides information on such subjects as food processing, home conservation, and fuel consumption
- General Energy Resources (GEN) - devoted to issues such as energy policy, the economic aspects of energy consumption, and international energy situations

All 1,532 titles in Energy and Agriculture were selected and compiled by Dr. B.A. Stout of the Agricultural Engineering Department of Texas A&M University. The collection represents today's most significant scientific findings in these important fields.

The Great Exhibition of 1851: Prospectuses of Exhibitors

The Industrial Revolution brought unprecedented change to the Western world. It was an age of accelerated advancement spurred on by a unquenchable thirst for innovation and a new lust for progress. Nowhere was this more evident than at the Great Exhibition of 1851. Conceived and designed as a spectacular display of manufacturing achievements, the Great Exhibition of 1851 was attended by six million people attracted to the 8,200 exhibitors' "modern" wares. Joseph Paxton's enormous Crystal Palace, built from 900,000 square feet of glass to house the exposition, is testimony to the scale of the event's ambition and success. Although mostly supported by British vendors, foreign nations were an integral part of the event. The vast cross-section of products exhibited from the nations of the world was a profound statement of what many believed healthy competition, free trade and general political stability could achieve. More than any previous exposition, this event provided a tremendous opportunity for comparisons of leading products and new innovations and catalyzed subsequent advancements. These technological advancements were detailed in the exhibitors' prospectuses. The Great Exhibition of 1851: Prospectuses of Exhibitors provides insight into the design, technological innovations, business activities and marketing of the time. Comprising nearly 900 individual prospectuses from businesses around the world, the collection is divided into four general categories: raw materials, machinery, manufactures and fine arts. Within these categories, the material has been organized into 30 classes. Prospectuses are included on the following types of products.

Raw Materials

- Substances used as food
- Vegetable and animal substances used in manufactures

Machinery

- Agricultural and horticultural machines and implements
- Philosophical and horological instruments

The History of the Vietnam War

'The History of the Vietnam War...is of inestimable value for primary source research for graduate contemporary history, political science and programs of international study. It also holds much potential for graduate and undergraduate level studies in cultural anthropology...[and] European colonial history.'

~ Microform Review

Not since the Civil War has a conflict so divided the American public. The Vietnam War is the most political, controversial war ever recorded in American military history. Even today, years after the withdrawal of U.S. troops, researchers strive to separate fact from fiction. The History of the Vietnam War provides a comprehensive and systematically organized collection of material on this series of events. All aspects of the war are covered in this collection - from the Viet Cong and the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Southeast Asia to the campuses and political forums in the U.S. Conflicting perceptions about the nature, course and purpose of the war are represented. The collection spans 21 years and includes 365,000 pages of materials. Contents include:

- Unclassified and declassified U.S. Government documents and reports
- Captured documents
- Transcripts of interviews with defectors
- Prisoner of war interrogation reports
- Newspaper and periodical clippings from American, Vietnamese, Asian and European English-language publications
- Media monitoring documents from the Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) and the Department of Commerce Joint Publications Research Service (JPRS)
- Scholarly monographs and studies
- Transcripts of speeches and press conferences by leaders on both sides
- Un-copyrighted books
- Monographs and similar published source materials
- Propaganda leaflets and similar materials published by both sides
- A number of unpublished book-length manuscripts chiefly by Vietnamese writers

All materials have been collected by Douglas Pike, Director of the Indochina Archives at the University of California, Berkeley and a well-known authority on the Vietnam conflict. As a U.S. Foreign Service Officer during the war, he was considered the U.S. Government's leading expert on Vietnamese communism. He has collected materials from not only the United States, but Saigon, Hanoi, Peking, Moscow, Tokyo, Australia and Western Europe. Many documents were gathered from personal contacts during and after Mr. Pike's presence in Vietnam. Organized into the broad subject categories listed below and then arranged chronologically, the collection can be used as a resource for researchers and students and as a unique teaching tool in American and Southeast Asian history, political science, international relations, military history, journalism and many other fields of study. Unit pertaining to Agriculture & Farming:

- Unit Eight: North Vietnam During the War: Agriculture/Cambodia consists primarily of press releases and other captured internal documents concerned with agricultural progress in North Vietnam. A smaller section deals with Cambodia from the 1960s to the end of the 1970s.

Southern Tenant Farmers Union Papers

1934 - 1977

In its zeal to implement New Deal farm programs, the Roosevelt Administration caused the eviction of thousands of southern sharecropper families. Thus incensed, a handful of black and white farmers met in a schoolhouse in Arkansas and formed the Southern Tenant Farmers Union (STFU). This union was to become a powerful force in American labor and would eventually be a prototype for Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers of America. The Southern Tenant Farmers Union Papers (also called "The Green Rising") encompass a multitude of issues, movements and individual histories on microform. A major acquisition for any library's social science collection, these papers can be used by scholars and researchers investigating the historical perspectives of the New Deal, farm labor, or Southern, Mexican-American and American labor history.

Founded by seven black and 11 white sharecroppers on an Arkansas cotton plantation, the STFU laid the groundwork for and contributed to the creation of the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee in the U.S. Senate and the Kennedy-Johnson Administration's War on Poverty. The entire history of this influential union can be traced, from its humble beginnings under the auspices of the Socialist Party, through its brief and stormy affiliation with the CIO; from its entry into the AFL up to its merger into another union in the 1960s. A unique feature of this collection is the correspondence from sharecroppers to union officials. Notes scrawled on scraps of paper or penciled on the backs of outdated calendars tell of usurious landlords, sick children and flood conditions.

Featured is an unpublished thesis by Dale Rosen, which documents the facts surrounding the Reeltown Massacre, as well as Johnson's oral history. David S. Burgess Papers - Insight into the lives of migrant workers during the 1940s can be gathered throughout the papers of David Burgess - a minister who saved the homes of 600 families in the Delmo Labor Homes Project of Southeast Missouri. In later years, Burgess was a CIO organizer and head of the Georgia CIO. Thomas H. ## Western Americana

1701 - 1976

The settling of the western territories of the United States is a subject that continues to fascinate both the serious researcher and the history buff. The courage and pioneer spirit of the men and women who explored and settled these new lands will always remain an integral part of the American character and legend. Western Americana offers students of American history and others interested in learning more about this country's growth a wide range of books and documents about the American west. This comprehensive microfiche collection spans the 18th through the early 20th centuries and includes federal and state documents, directories, guidebooks, state and regional histories, memoirs, reminiscences and travel accounts and conventional primary and secondary histories of the west.

Clark C. Spence and the four other prominent historians who compiled this collection set out to present researchers with firsthand accounts by the ordinary men and women who built the west - sodbusters, livery stable keepers, middle-class housewives. These personal narratives by people who directly observed the early western scene provide unique, vivid descriptions of the conditions and events at the time. For example, Caroline Kirkland's A New Home - Who'll Follow? provides a realistic portrayal of frontier life in Michigan during the 1830s. These informative personal accounts are balanced throughout the collection with numerous works by professional historians, thus providing a complete overview of American history as the settled lands pushed closer and closer to the Pacific Ocean. Western Americana is organized into sub-collections that may be purchased separately. Many of the subject headings listed serve the newer disciplines of ethnohistory, urbanology, natural resources and women's studies. The following sub-collections are related to Agriculture & Farming:

- Agriculture
- Livestock Industry
- Land & Water Questions of the Public Domain
- Conservation & Use of Resources
- The Fur Trade & Early Exploration

Within these sub-collections, researchers can explore such areas as accounts of early Anglo-American, French and Spanish explorations in the west, personal narratives by fur trappers and traders and more. The 1,012 titles included also provide a wealth of material on economics, government explorations, religion, education and culture. The collection offers one of the most exciting resources available depicting the western experience as it relates to the social, economic and political development of our country.

British Agricultural Writers

1557 - 1817

The early writings on agriculture have long been regarded by agrarian historians as an important source of information on farming theory and practice. However, only a handful of specialized libraries of early agricultural books exist, and many of the early books are so scarce as to be virtually unobtainable. If available, few libraries, and even fewer individuals, could afford to purchase the original 17th, 18th, and early 19th century works. Through this microfiche collection, researchers in agriculture, anthropology, economics, and the history of science can now access these rare and valuable writings. The collection provides a selection of old English farm books by almost 50 different writers, including William Ellis, George Kay, Gervase Markham, William Marshall, and Matthew Peters. It covers all parts of the British Isles. Sample topics include:

- Agriculture
- Botany
- Dairy farming
- Farm economy
- Farming equipment
- Husbandry
- Land management
- Livestock management
- Lumbering
- Weather

British Agricultural Writers includes such diverse titles as:

- The Country Gentlemen & Farmer's Monthly Director
- The Shepherd of Banbury's Rules to know the Change of the Weather
- The Riches of a Hop Garden explained
- The Modern Husbandman
- The Complete Planter and Cyderist
- An account of the mode of Draining Land
- Cavalrice: or, the English Horseman
- The Language of Botany
- A Review & Complete Abstract of the Reports of the Board of Agriculture

This collection will provide students and researchers with the primary source material needed to give them insight not only into agrarian history, but also into social history and economics.

Muir, John. Papers of John Muir

1858 - 1957

'The battle for conservation will go on endlessly. It is part of the universal battle between right and wrong.' ~ John Muir

The John Muir Papers brought together into a single microform collection from repositories throughout the United States, offer a rare insight into the origins and development of the environmentalist movement in America. At a time when land was seen as no more than a rich source of raw materials ripe for exploitation, Muir was among the first to realize the ecological importance of forests and wilderness, fighting to save some of California's finest landscape from indiscriminate farming and lumbering. His Papers which contain 7,000 letters together with journals, sketchbooks and nearly 3,000 nature and landscape photographs throw a revealing light on these drawn-out and sometimes bitter struggles.

Food and Nutrition: The Holdings of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Information Center

1960 - 1979

In recent years, Americans have become active researchers into health-related topics such as nutrition and a vast amount of literature has been generated on this subject. Food and Nutrition offers, in one comprehensive microfiche collection, over 1,000 documents from the Food and Nutrition Information Center (FNIC) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This authoritative reference program meets a wide range of research needs for institutions supporting programs in food service management, nutrition, public health, home economics, dietetics, social work and related disciplines. Included are materials on the components of good nutrition, as well as the technical aspects of food preparation. The resources found in Food and Nutrition can aid researchers asking these types of specific questions:

- Malnutrition: How does it affect learning and behavior?
- Menu planning: Which foods comprise a balanced meal?
- Obesity: What are its causes, cures and contra-indications on general health?
- Convenience foods: Are they nutritionally sound?
- Food poisoning: How can it be prevented?

In addition to the literature available on food and nutrition, the collection features essential background information on the changes, setbacks, progress and achievements in the food industry and in consumer education programs. Drawn from FNIC holdings prepared for the respected AGRICOLA database, Food and Nutrition offers a diversity of opinions and possible solutions to nutritional problems. The collection is conveniently organized into 13 subject categories covering virtually every aspect of food and nutrition:

- consumer protection
- diet and diet-related diseases
- nutrition education and career development
- food composition
- food service management
- home economics
- human nutrition
- legislation
- nutrition legislation
- outlook, policies, programs
- physiology of human nutrition
- general information

Food and Nutrition consists of the base collection and an update and includes only materials selected by a FNIC nutrition specialist for this microfiche program.

Sahel: Documents and Dissertations

In recent decades, world attention has been drawn to various areas of Africa affected by natural disasters. The most prevalent have been prolonged droughts and their devastating effects on the people in these precarious, underdeveloped economies. Response to these crises usually involve food airlifts to avert immediate disaster, but there exist few permanent programs designed to avoid drought-related losses. Sahel: Documents and Dissertations documents one cooperative effort in existence among eight independent nations along a 2,600-mile strip of West Africa known as the Sahel. In 1973, the Permanent Interstate Committee for Drought Control in the Sahel (CILSS, after the French initials) was formed by the governments of six countries most affected by a severe drought - Sénégal, Mauritania, Mali, Upper Volta (Burkina Faso), Niger and Chad. The countries of Gambia and Cape Verde joined later in coordinating planning efforts to avoid repeated drought-related disasters. Researchers in African studies, agricultural economics and socio-economics will discover more than 1,000 documents and dissertations that report on the agricultural, economic and socio-economic changes in the Sahel region during and after the drought.

This material - one of the only compilations of its kind in existence - provides fertile ground for studies of the effects of disasters on unstable economies. It also offers a model for an analysis of international cooperative efforts in Africa and elsewhere in the world. Featured are publications from African governments, research funded by USAID (U.S. Agency for International Development), dissertations, theses and reports from the United Nations CILSS, Club du Sahel and other international agencies. Nearly half of the collection is in English, half is in French and two documents are in Portuguese. Titles in the collection are arranged by country, including informative profiles for each of the eight nations. A separate section covers the Sahel region overall. Nine hundred of the documents were selected by Dr. Joseph Lauer from Michigan State University's Sahel Documentation Center, one of the world's leading libraries of agriculture economic materials on the Sahel. The remaining 100 are American doctoral dissertations selected by Dr. Lauer from UMI's dissertation database.

1820 - 1931
Germany
The Polytechnisches Journal documented the important stages of the industrial development in Europe from the early 19th century until the first decades of the 20th century. The scope of its reports extends from the early innovations in agriculture, manufacture and mining, the new developments in machinery, transportation vehicles, telecommunication and chemistry to the reception of Einstein's theory of relativity in the last editions of the journal. The journal also covers the technical progress in other countries, in particular Great Britain and France during the 19th century and Italy, Russia and America in the 20th century. The Polytechnisches Journal was the only journal in Europe which published a complete register of all English patents. Besides the technical aspects, the journal also addressed the social problems which were connected with the technical progress: the emergence of factory workers, the formation of trade unions and the first disputes as to environmental pollution. For today's research into the history of technics and industry and their social aspects, the Polytechnisches Journal is a first rate and indispensable source.

DATRIX DIRECT

Direct to you Successful research depends on your sources. That's why if you're preparing to start a research project, it makes sense to first find out what's been written in your area of interest. You'll not only avoid duplicating someone else's work, you'll benefit from their research. | You could search the titles of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses yourself—if you have the time and patience. Or you can have DATRIX Direct conduct a dissertation search for you that's exhaustive, not exhausting.

Discover sources unique to your topic

DATRIX Direct is an individualized search that gives a one-of-a-kind listing of only those dissertation citations directly relevant to your specific research topic. The result is a computer printout of exactly the bibliographic citations you need. No more and no less. It could be as many as five hundred or as few as none (informing you that your research topic is totally unexplored).

Because it's a computerized search, DATRIX Direct is comprehensive—through UMI's vast computer database of over 1.6 million dissertations and master's theses dating back to 1861. And with thousands of citations being added to the database every month, DATRIX Direct is more up-to-date than any printed source. ■ Each citation includes a title, author, degree, date, institution, subject category, and order number, as well as where the abstract can be found in UMI's monthly publication Dissertation Abstracts International or the bi monthly Masters Abstracts International.

How to order your search To organize your search, complete both sides of the DATRIX Direct Search Request form and send it to UMI at the address shown. ■

The results of your DATRIX Direct search will be sent first-class mail and should arrive within two weeks of receipt of your order. For faster service, call us toll free at 800-521-3042; outside the U.S. and Canada, call 734-761-4700, ext. 7044.

SUBJECT CATEGORIES Dissertation Abstracts International is arranged by subject categories. These categories have been selected by the authors to identify their dissertations.

You must COMPLETE BOTH SIDES of this form!

DATRIX DIRECT SEARCH REQUEST The success of your search depends on how accurately and specifically you describe your research needs. The information you provide below will help us create a search strategy. Please type or clearly print in ink.

RESEARCH TOPIC Write the proposed title of your study or a summary of your research topic _____

DATABASE MATERIAL TO BE SEARCHED (Please check one)  Dissertations & master's theses  Dissertations only  Master's theses only

KEYWORDS UMI's dissertation database is accessed by a search for keywords in the dissertation title. The number of relevant citations retrieved depends largely on your keyword strategy. For best results, follow the procedure below:

1 Write 1 to 3 keywords from your research topic that might appear together in the dissertation titles in our database (e.g., "Nursing Burnout"). A keyword can also be numeric ("1980") or alphanumeric ("B12"). Only dissertation titles containing all the words you list on a single line can be retrieved.

2 To avoid having to list all possible word endings for a keyword, simply write the root word and an asterisk. One or more complete words must follow the root word on the same line (e.g., "Nurs*", "Burnout" would search for words such as "nurse, nurses, and nursing" which appear in the same titles as "burnout").

3 Use the other lines for synonyms and alternate words and spellings (e.g., "RN; LPN; BSN").

4 Modify words likely to appear in hundreds of titles with more specific words.

5 If appropriate, use the right-hand column to list keywords that exclude data you don't want. (e.g., "Nurs", "Home" and "Nurs", "Homes" would exclude titles relating to nursing homes or home nursing. Note that the computer recognizes no word order.)

SUBJECT CATEGORIES (optional) Each citation title is listed in UMI's dissertation database in a subject category chosen by the author. On the opposite page is a complete listing of subject categories and codes. List the categories (and codes) most relevant to your research topic.

DEGREE DATES (optional) You may narrow the database search to certain years or time periods (e.g., "1980 through 1983"). This is especially recommended for broad categories such as "Education, Administrative", for which nearly 1,200 titles are added each year.

_____

INSTITUTIONS AWARDING DEGREES (optional) You may restrict the search to dissertations and master's theses prepared for specific institutions (e.g., "New York University and UCLA").
